CORPORATE TANNER'S fees in pension cases have amounted to over $200,000 since he was removed from the Commissioner's office.

JOSEPH PULTZER has sold his New York World to George W. Childs and A. W. Drexel, of Philadelphia, for about $3,000,000. The sale includes the building, good will, presses and everything owned and used in the World.

THE El Paso Herald advises the people of that bustling burg to obtain the services of Professor Heerdegen, the Cincinnati water locator, to hunt them up an underground stream of water which they feel convinced is in the immediate neighborhood of the city. Heerdegen may have wonderful powers for locating subterranean water, its depth, velocity, etc., but if he has he must have been walking in his sleep while here. He guaranteed a certain immense flow of water for the Yuma Copper Mining Company at the depth of seventy feet, but, after making several holes several hundred feet deep in the neighborhood designated, the company has been compelled to make arrangements for a nine-mile pipe line from mountain springs. The "Professor" had not, it is affirmed, located even damp ground.

THE Tucson Citizen, speaking of the arrest of Hon. Thomas Hughes, such arrest being much in the nature of a persecution, well says: "Hon. Thomas Hughes was arrested a few days since on the charge of illegal voting at the last city election. The complaint was sworn out by Mr. Charles M. Strauss, who charged that Mr. Hughes was not a resident of Tucson, and consequently not entitled to vote at the municipal election. It so happens that Mr. Hughes recently purchased the Judd property sided there with his family, but that does not, in our opinion, make him less a citizen of Tucson, nor disfranchise him as a voter. Mr. Hughes has been a resident of this Territory for twenty years, the last ten years of which has been spent in this city. He is one of the heaviest taxpayers within the corporate limits of the town, and to attempt to deny him the right of voting, or have him arrested and prosecuted because he did vote, smacks too much of political shysterism to find favor in any court of justice. The case was heard before a jury in Judge Meyer's Court two days since, and the result was as anticipated, an immediate acquittal. The question that comes to the fore is what good purpose did Mr. Strauss hope to serve in having Mr. Hughes arrested? Mr. Strauss himself is not a taxpayer, consequently he had no moneyed interests jeopardized by Mr. Hughes' vote, and so far as known he has not been appointed moral guardian of the city, but we do know that this highly moral show cost the county a snug little sum of money."

The latest movement appears to be a general one to add regiments of Indians to the regular army, for the especial purpose of fighting the battles of the whites against any hostile aborigines that may conclude in the future to take the warpath. The scheme would perhaps be a good one, under certain limitations. It is but natural that Indians, knowing the ways of their hostile brethren, and being less dependent upon baggage trains or other impediments, would be much more likely to overtake the fleeing marauders than would white troops, and once overtaken, the capture of the hostiles would be a matter solely dependent upon the numbers of the respective opposing forces. Traveling through the mountains, insensible to fatigue, living upon the corn that he carries in a pouch at the girdle, would not be deemed serious hardships to an Indian, while such work would kill a soldier fresh from the barracks. The natural inclinations of all Indians are for such work, as well, and they would enter into it with enthusiasm. Yet in selecting such scouts or soldiers, care should be taken to secure them only from tribes of known loyalty, preferably on bad terms with the foes they are designed to pursue. The Government can find in Arizona abundant evidence to the effect that Indians cannot be trusted to oppose their tribesmen. In this Territory the practice of arming Apache scouts has worked to the very manifest disadvantage of the army and furnished the munitions whereby many an Indian raid was successfully executed. Many of the most blood-thirsty deeds of Apache warfare have been committed by those who were once scouts. Naturally, then, with the experience had, such a tribe should not be applied to for a quota of scouts or soldiers. There are tribes in Arizona, however, hereditary enemies of the Apaches, who would wish for nothing better than to act as soldiers against them. The Pimas and Maricopas have never been known to turn against the whites and from time immemorial have successfully fought the mountain Indians. They have several times before asked that the general Government enlist scouts from their tribe and, surely under the new order of affairs, their request should be granted.

The American Economist copies the following from the London Financial Times:

The measure which has all but killed the pearl button industry in Austria has suddenly resuscitated it in the United States. Some years ago several thousand workmen were employed in the twenty-one pearl button manufacturing of Newark, N. J. Congress lowered the duty on foreign buttons, and the result was that three-fourths of the factories had to close, while wages were reduced in those that remained open. Protected by an increased duty, averaging nearly 100 per cent, the American pearl button makers can now get to work again, and can afford to pay wages of from $15 to $25 per week to the operatives. Meanwhile, many of their Austrian rivals have to face the alternative either of retiring from the business or shifting the scene of their operations to the United States.

Here we have a direct statement that a great many thousands of American workmen and women who were thrown out of employment because the wretched men and women in Austria would make buttons at a price which no mechanic in America would accept, and that the restoration of the tariff on pearl buttons will restore to work these thousands of men and women at living wages. If a great many thousands can be employed that way, there will be more market at home for the product of the soil, there will be less competition among farmers, one more new industry will be created, and the necessity for exporting the raw products of the soil will be that much reduced. Then what these thousands of people eat they will buy in this country; the money they pay for their food will gravitate back among the people, and our Nation, instead of Austria, will be the gainer, and the McKinley bill will vindicate itself when given a fair chance.

The Christmas number of THE REPUBLICAN will contain a charming frontier Christmas story, by Mrs. Custer, an original Christmas poem, written especially for this paper, and other excellent selections pertinent to the day. Orders for extra copies should be left at the business office by Tuesday evening.

Efforts are being made to establish the free postal delivery system in Phoenix, but how it can be established without a house-numbering ordinance being first adopted and enforced THE REPUBLICAN can not understand.
